Wright has also published a mainstream novel, a young adult novel, two chapbooks of poems and two nonfiction books.

New England Sisters in Crime is the local chapter of a national organization of mystery writers, readers, booksellers and librarians. It was founded in 1987 to:

"Combat discrimination against women in the mystery field, educate publishers and the general public as to the inequalities in the treatment of female authors, to raise the level of awareness of their contribution to the field and promote the advancement of women who write mysteries."

The local chapter holds four meetings a year with informational speakers, gathers for the President's annual party, provides a supportive network for published and unpublished writers and offers a Speaker's Bureau to schools, libraries, bookstores and local organizations. Membership information may be obtained by contacting:
